

Some live in a lake and have webbed feet and they have a smooth shell like the underwater turtle.

The tortoises live on land. They have claws on their feet and have a bumpy shell.

The ocean ones have a smooth shell and flippers.

Turtles live underwater. They lay eggs. They get out of the water and then go on land. They hide them in the sand and leave them alone and then they hatch. They walk on land and go back to the water and they find their mummies and daddies under water.

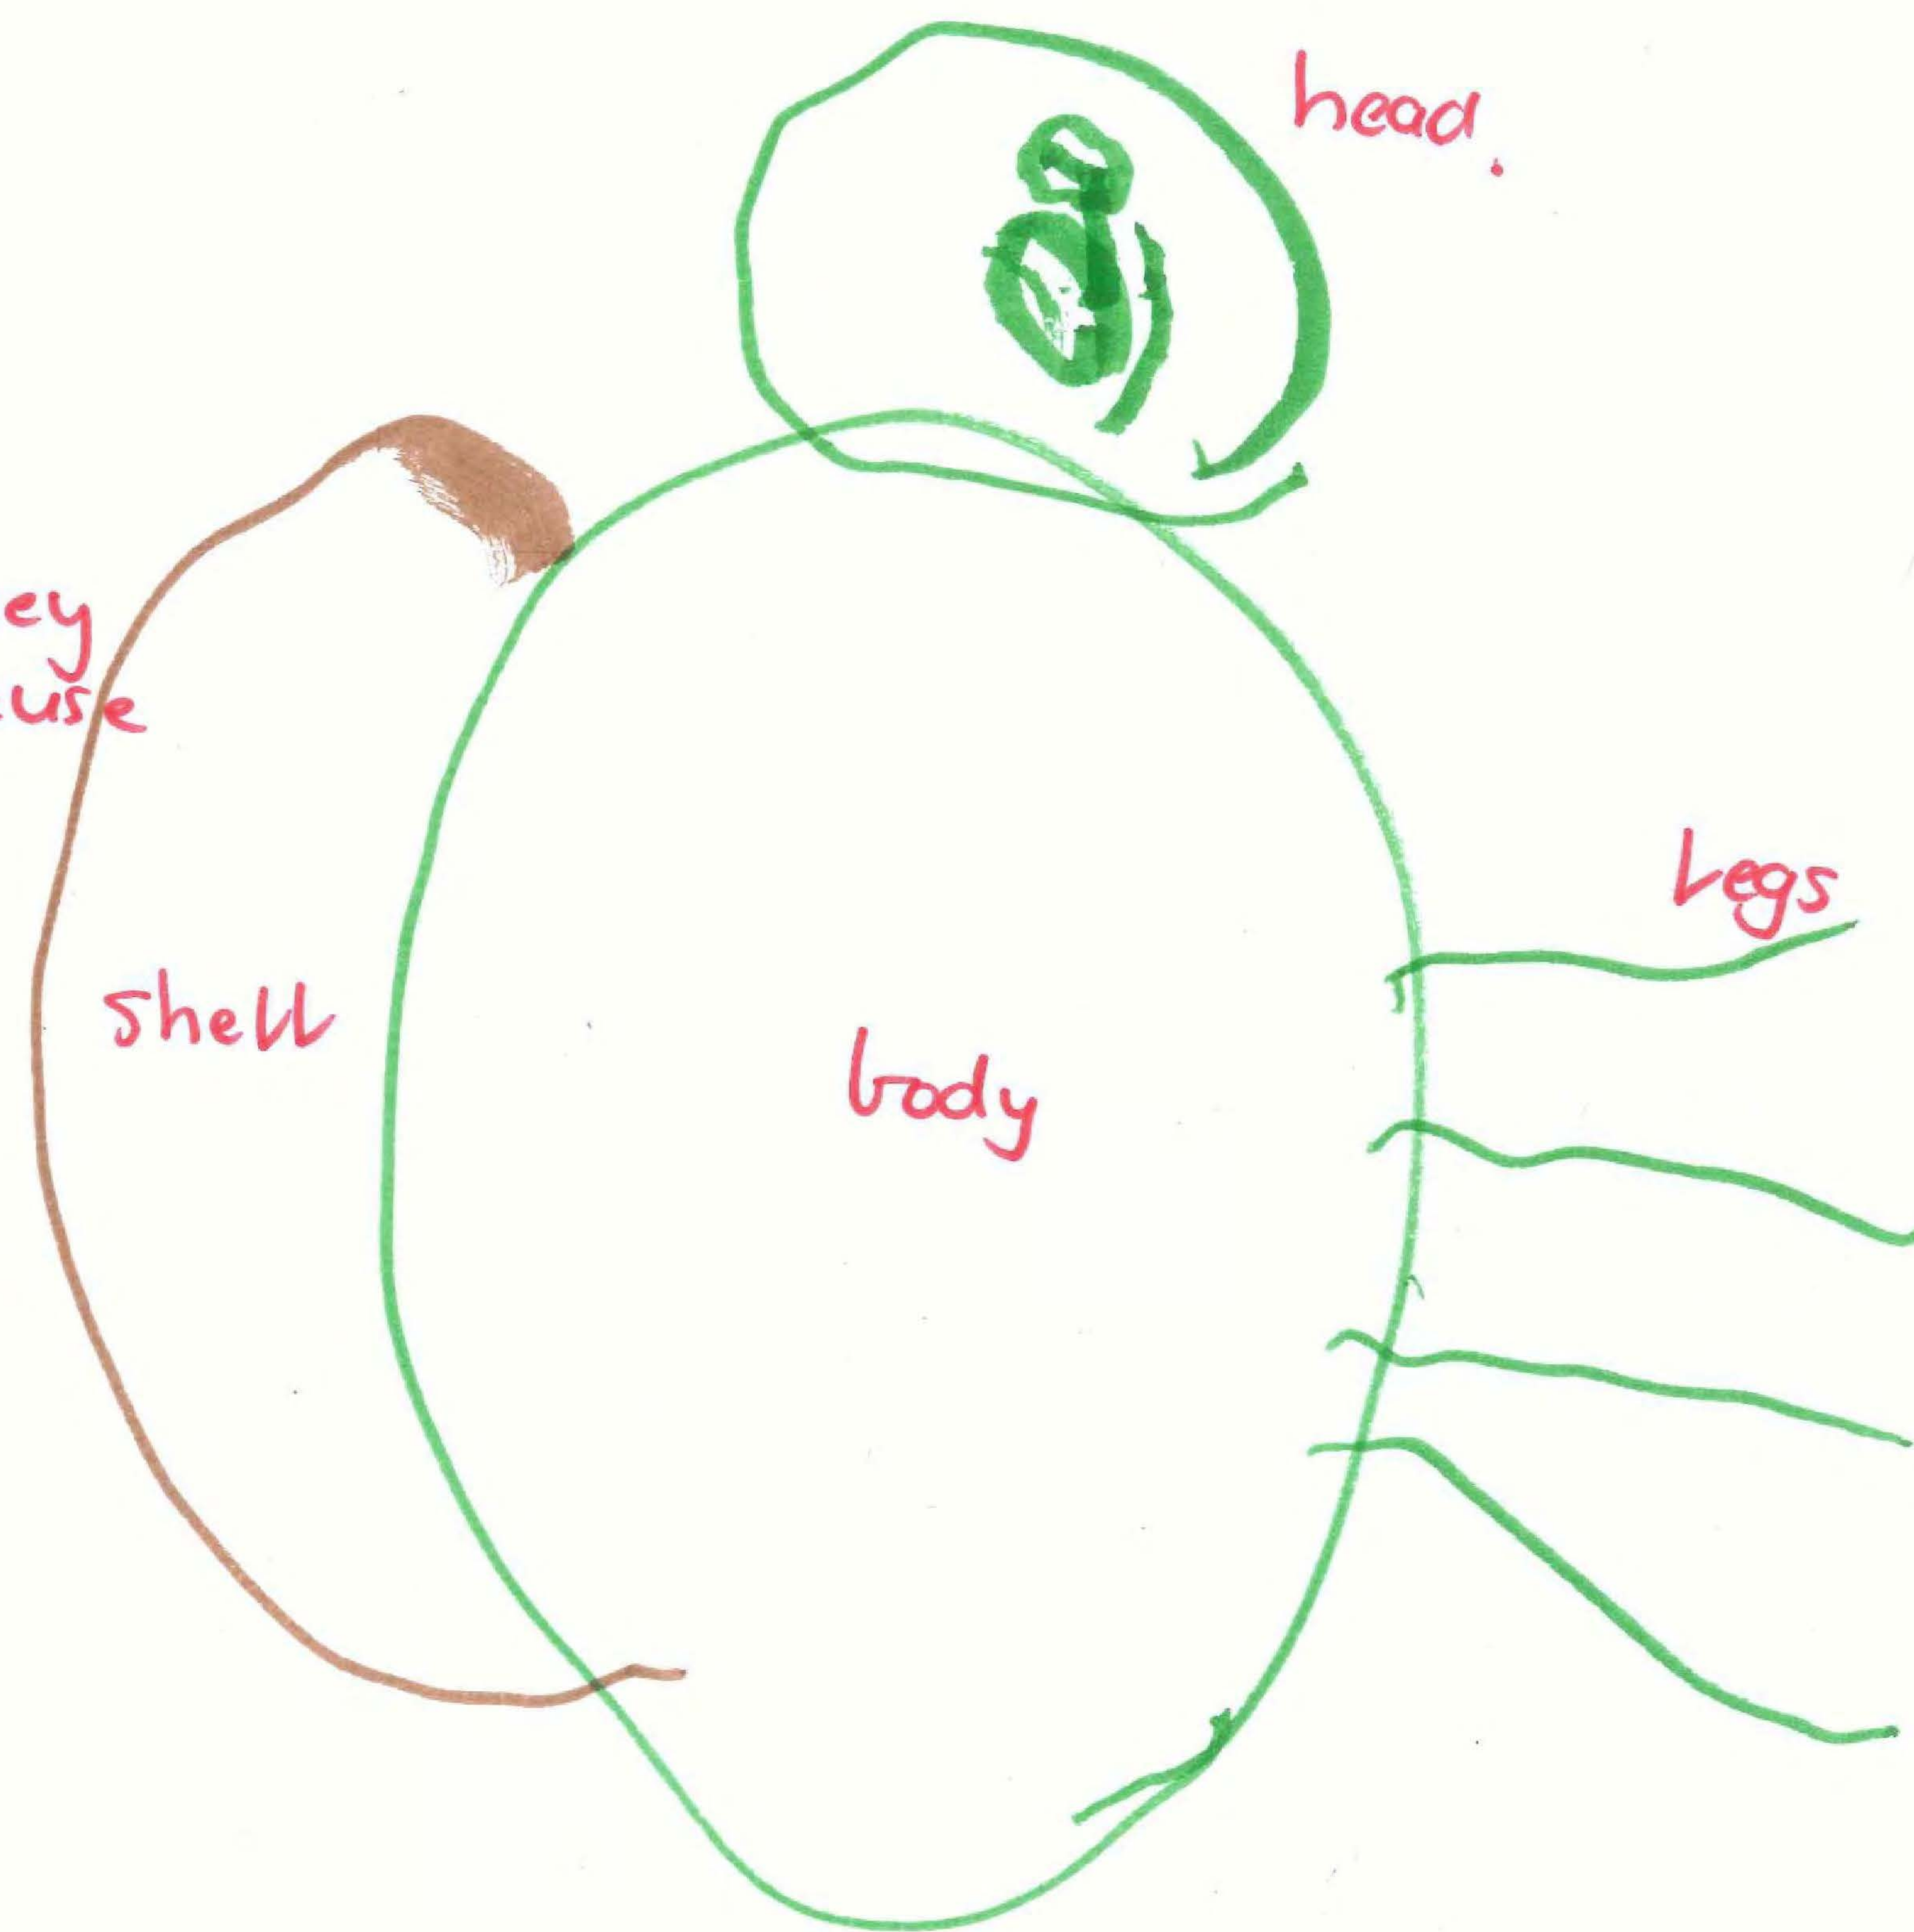

Turtles swim.

They have fins that push them through the water. Baby turtles are endangered when they get to the water because birds might eat them.

Turtles eat jelly fish.

They have a shell to protect them from things that eat them.

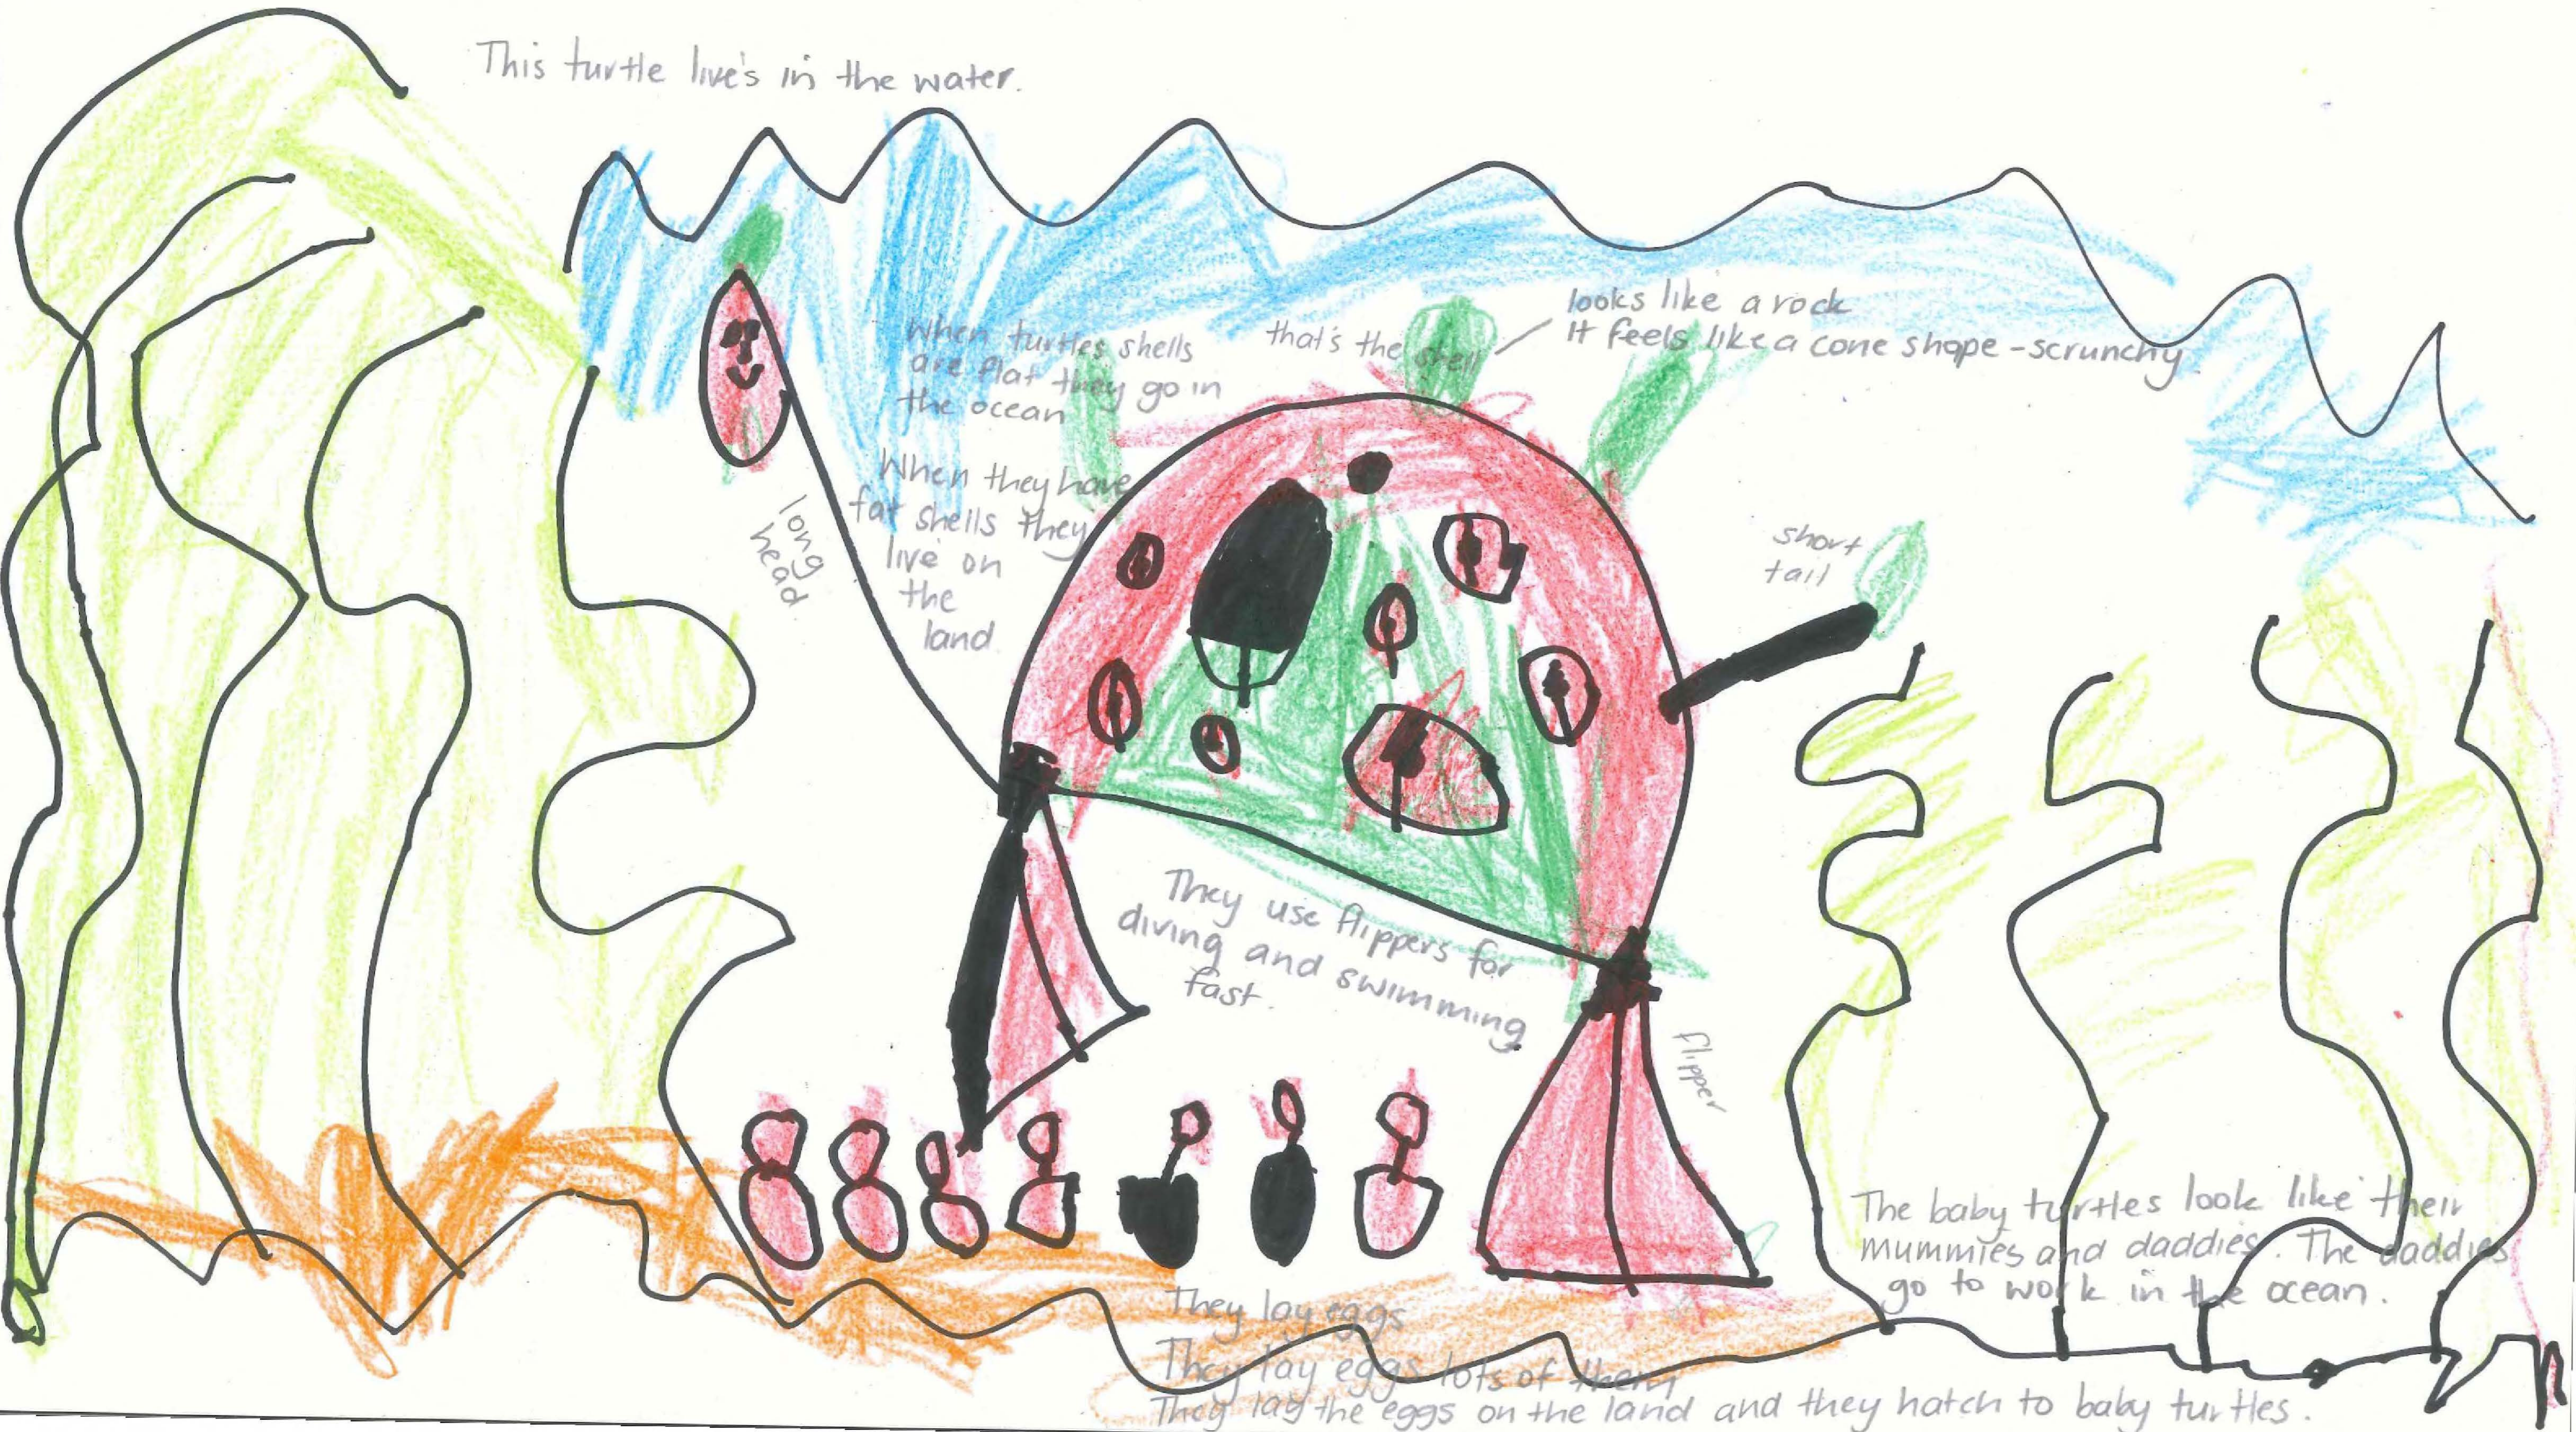

They cover themselves with their shell when they are scared.

Q Can turtles sleep?

This turtle live's in the water.

long head

When turtles shells are flat they go in the ocean

When they have fat shells they live on the land

that's the shell

looks like a rock
It feels like a cone shape - scrunchy

short tail

They use flippers for diving and swimming fast

flipper

The baby turtles look like their mummies and daddies. The daddies go to work in the ocean.

They lay eggs
They lay eggs lots of them
They lay the eggs on the land and they hatch to baby turtles.

head - 2 eyes.
1 nose
1 mouth
I don't know if they've got teeth.

These are the eggs in the mummies tummy.

shell - They protect their body from other creatures. It's hard. It looks like a hemisphere But flatter cause the tortoises have the fat shells.

This is the part where they're laying the eggs.

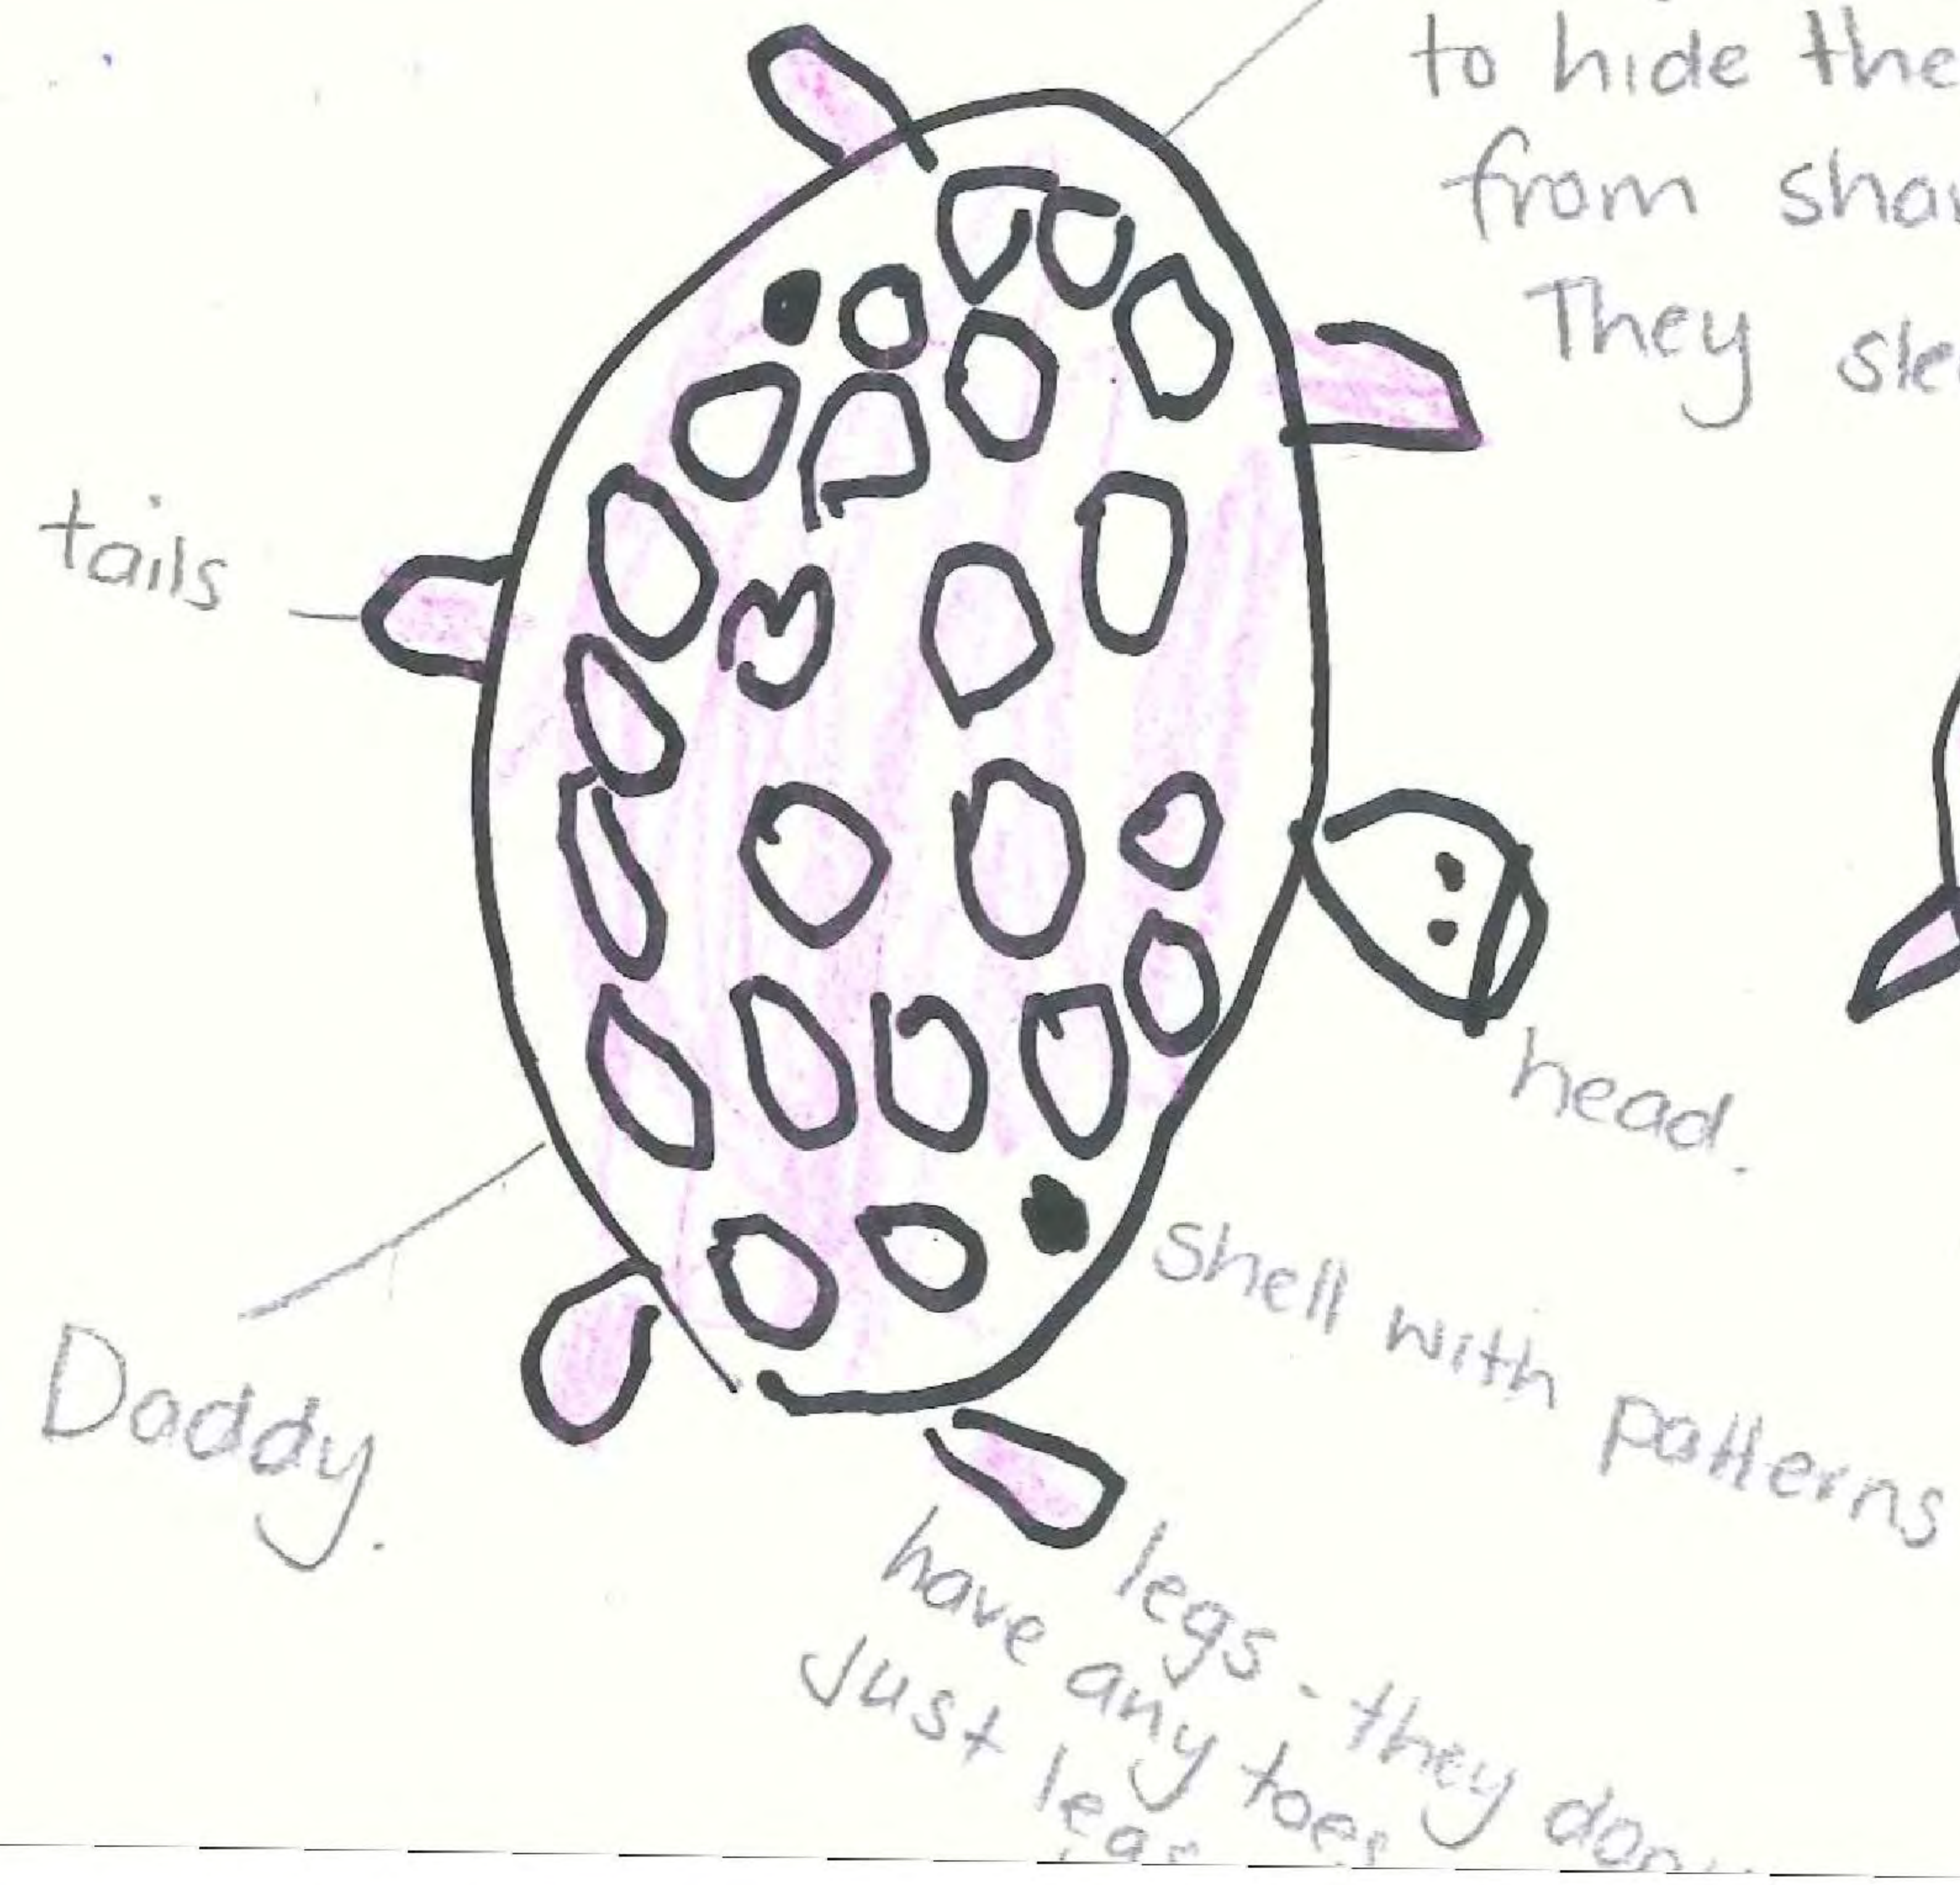

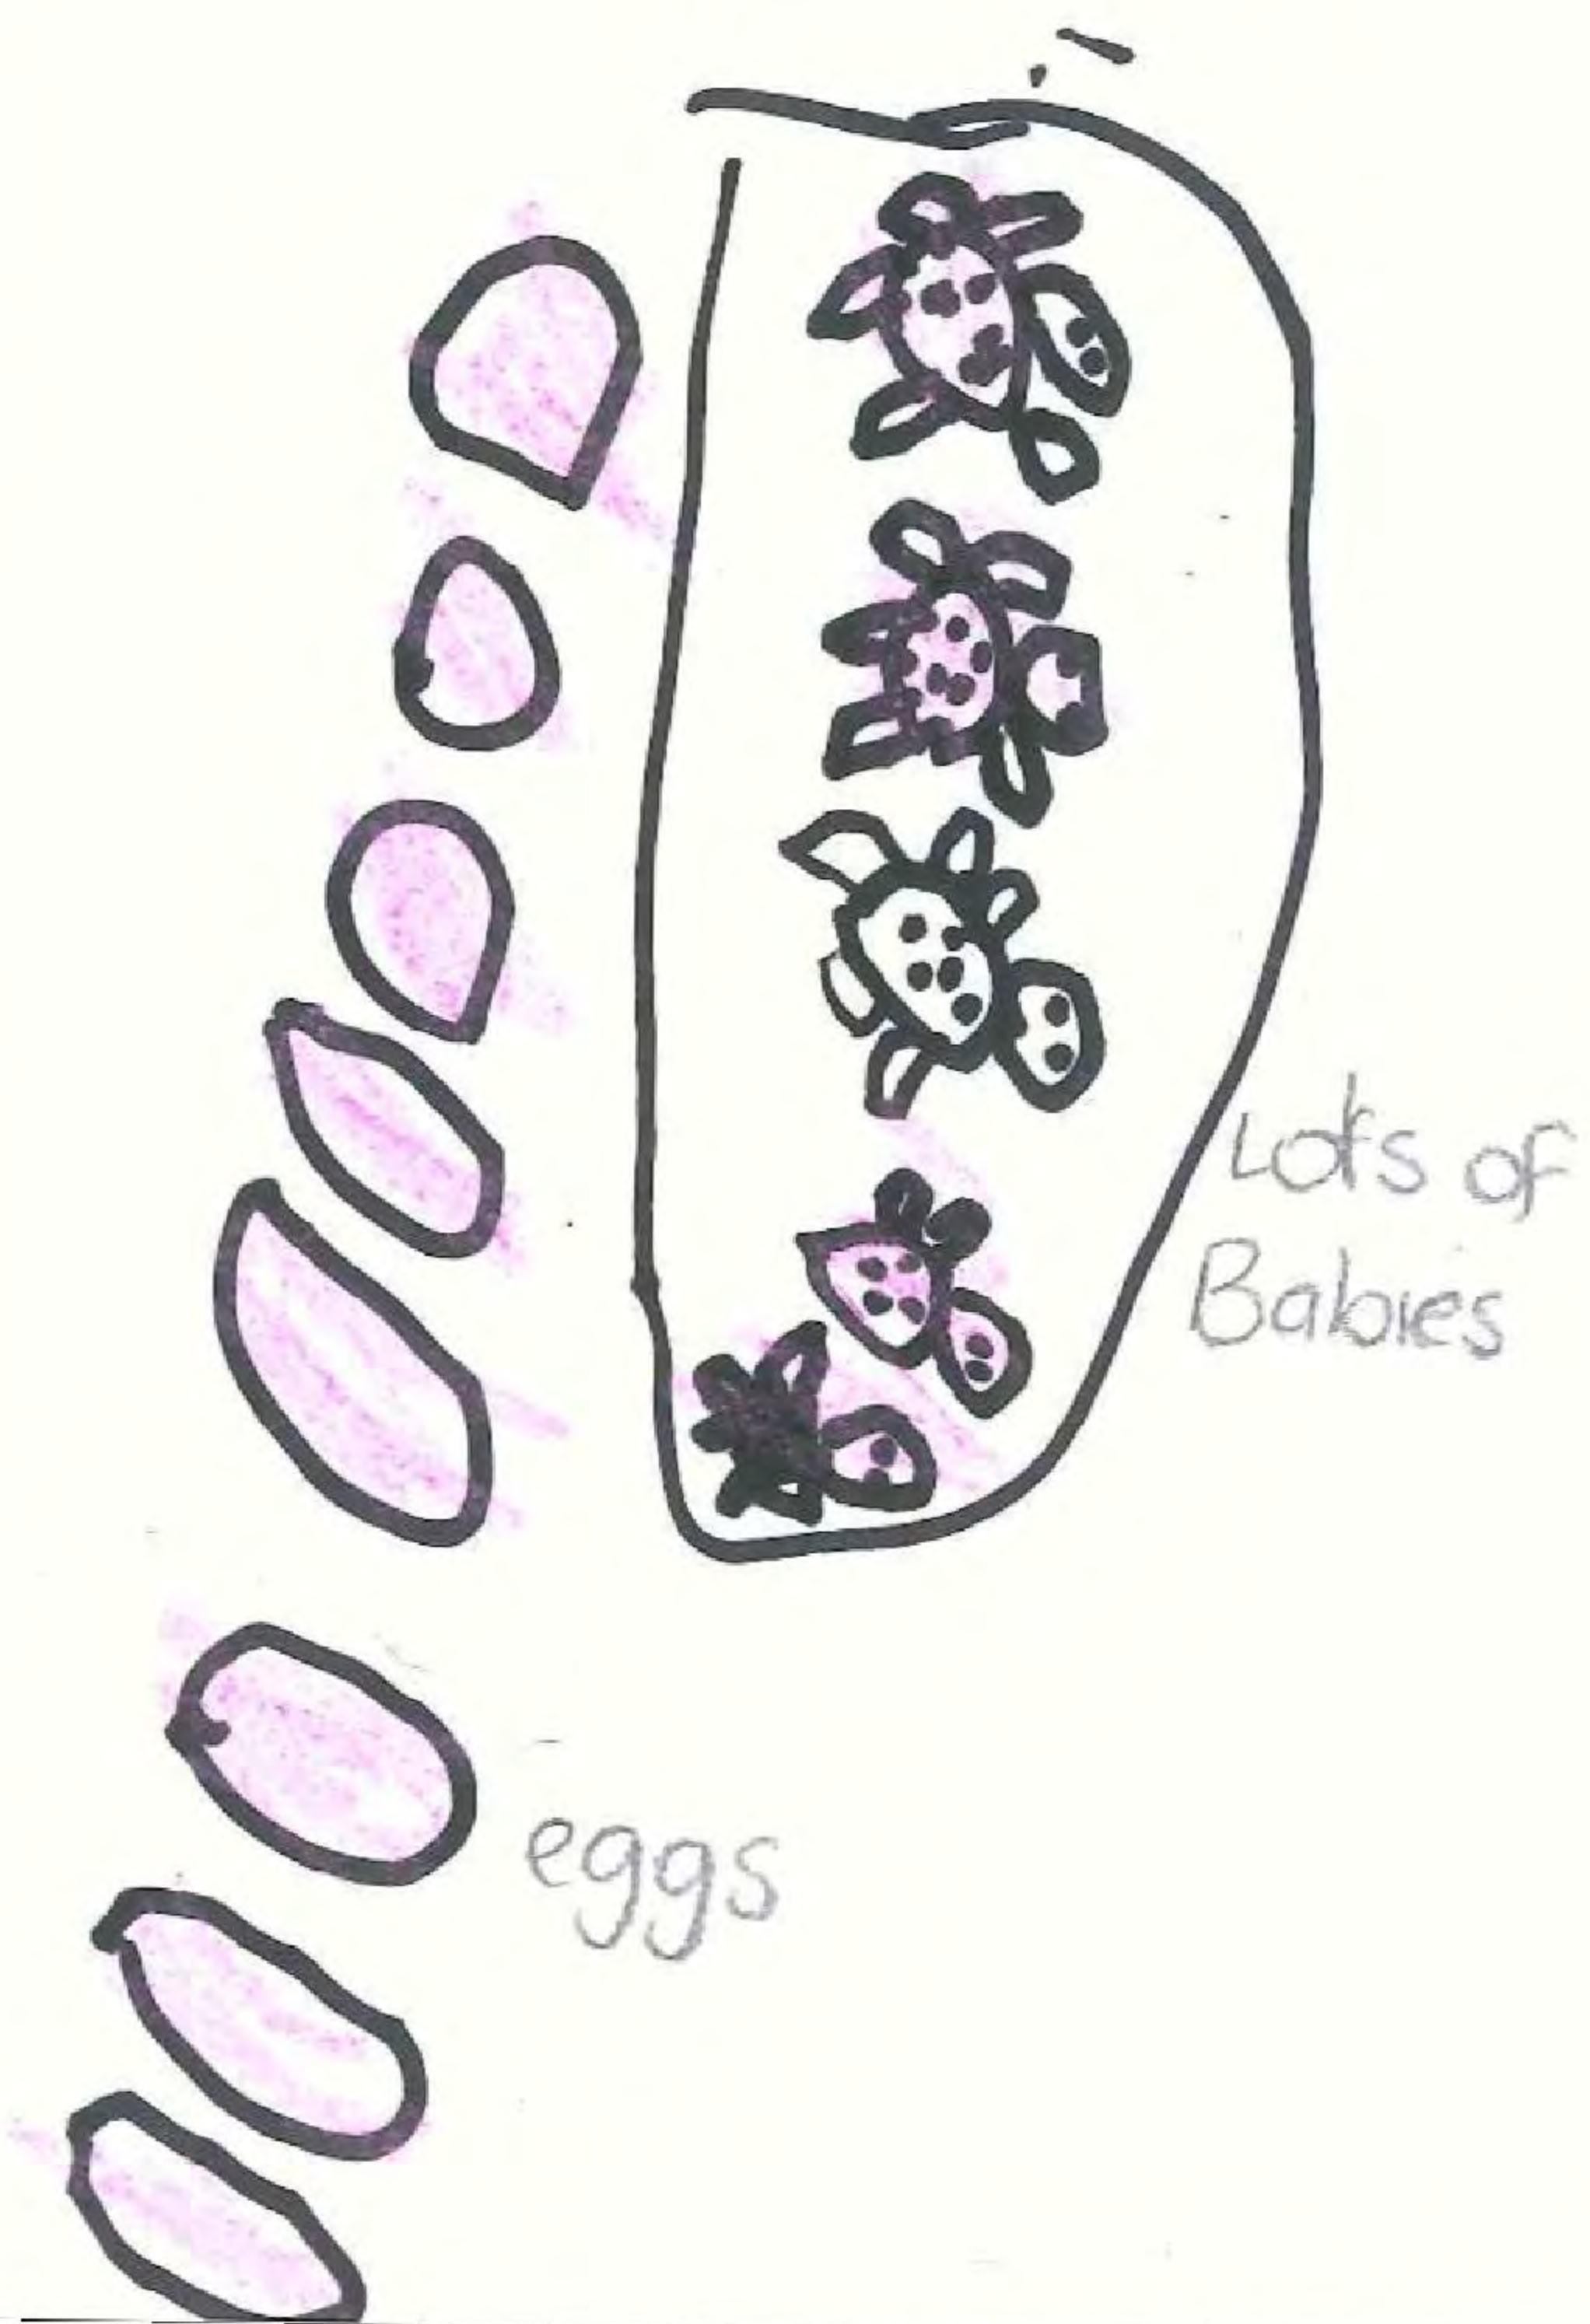

They lay the eggs on the sand here. The mummy puts them under the sand so she can hide it from other creatures. She goes to find food for them. They hatch and go back to the ocean to search for their mummy.

Turtles live in the ocean. They travel far using their flippers. They swim fast in the ocean and slow in the sand cause their flippers get tired pushing the sand.

They eat fish.

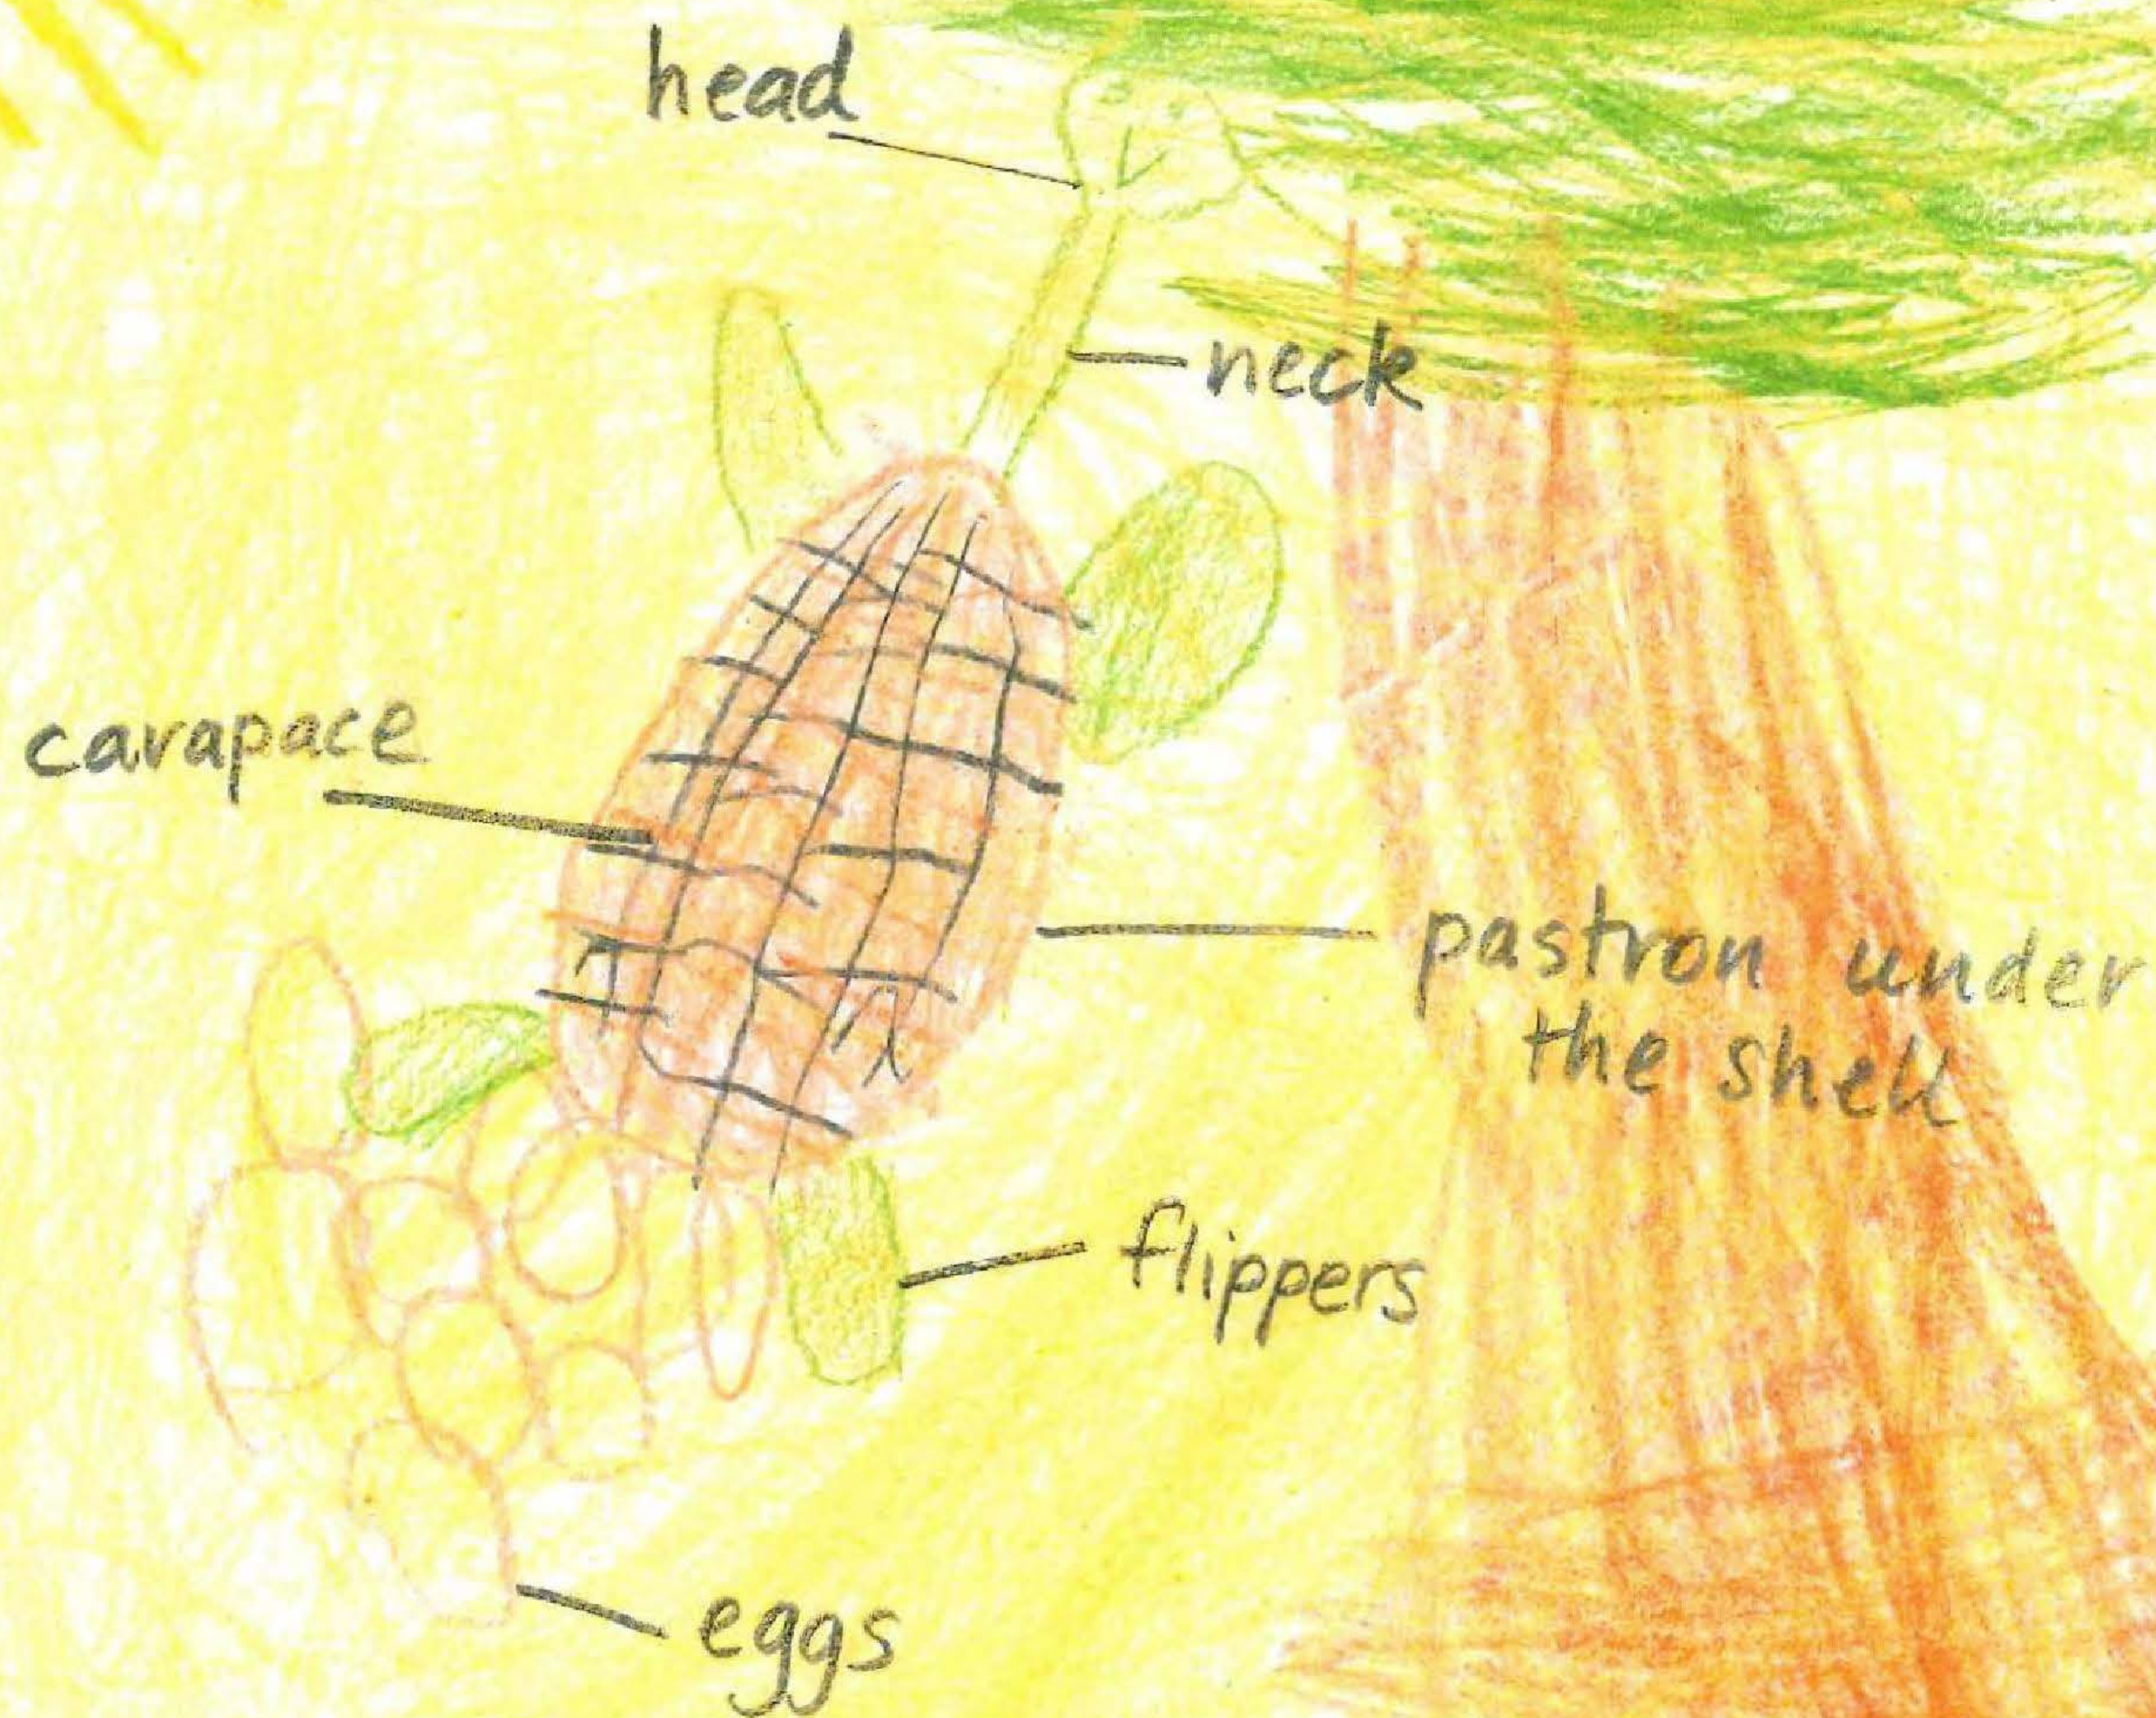

They live in their shell on the land and can go in the sea

It a hard shell because they like to hide them because they get scared from sharks and sea snakes.
They sleep in them.

Mamma

mummy

Turtles can lay eggs on the sand beach
They can go inside their shells